The 30-Minute Product Finder

How to find a digital product that already sells on Etsy, before you build anything.

The Digital Shop Playbook

BEFORE WE START

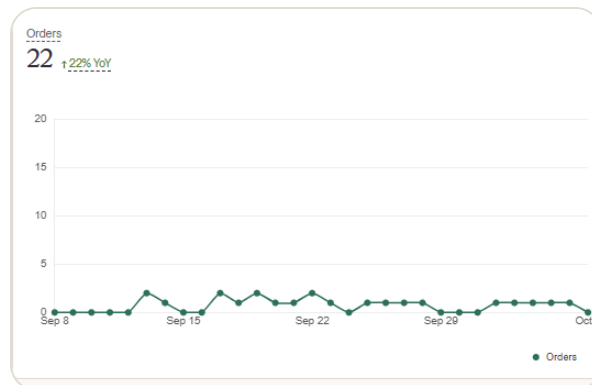

Hi, I'm Assaf.

A month and a half ago my Etsy shop had zero sales. In the last 30 days it had 22 orders.

I didn't get lucky and I didn't find a secret tool. I changed one thing: I stopped making products I liked and started making products in niches where people were already buying.

That one decision matters more than your design skills, your prices or your ads. Pick the right niche and a lot of other things get easier. Pick the wrong one and nothing else will save you.

This guide gives you a simple 30-minute method to find that niche. You don't need paid research software. Everything here uses Etsy itself and a notebook.

My shop's orders over the last 30 days. A real screenshot, not a mockup.

My numbers are my own results, not a promise of yours. Your results depend on your niche, your products, your effort and your market.

How this guide works

01 Find 3 niches where people are already buying · 10 min

02 Score them with the Niche Scorecard · 10 min

03 Turn the winner into your own better product · 10 min

Grab a timer. Set it for 10 minutes per step. The point isn't to be perfect. The point is to decide.

01

STEP ONE · 10 MINUTES

Find 3 niches where people are already buying

Etsy shows you what sells, if you know where to look.

A niche is a specific type of product for a specific type of buyer. "Planners" is not a niche. "Wedding planning printables for brides on a budget" is.

Where to look

1 Start broad in the Etsy search bar

Type a broad digital category: printable, sewing pattern, template, SVG, planner, digital download. Don't press enter yet. Read the suggestions Etsy fills in. Those suggestions come from what real buyers type.

2 Open the results and look for buying signals

You're not looking for pretty products. You're looking for proof of sales: the Bestseller badge, "In X+ carts" or "X people bought this in the last 24 hours", and listings with hundreds of reviews.

3 Check that more than one shop is winning

Click 3 to 4 of those listings and look at the shops. If several different shops sell similar products with good reviews, that's a real market, not one lucky seller.

4 Write down 3 candidate niches

Be specific. Instead of "costumes", write "printable kids' animal costumes". Instead of "bags", write "beginner bag sewing patterns".

GOOD SIGN VS. WARNING SIGN

- Good: many shops selling similar things, lots of reviews, products priced $10 or more.
- Warning: only one shop has all the sales, or everything is priced at $1 to $3. That's a price war, and you don't want to fight it.

FROM MY SHOP

Every niche I sell in today is one where I could see other shops already making sales. I never try to invent demand. I go where it already is.

02 STEP TWO · 10 MINUTES

Score them with the Niche Scorecard

Give each niche a point for every “yes”. The highest score wins.

Question	Niche 1	Niche 2	Niche 3
Are other shops selling it right now? Bestseller badges, cart counts, recent reviews.
Can it sell for $10 or more? Look at what the top listings charge.
Is there more than one winning shop? At least 3 shops with good reviews.
Does it connect to holidays or seasons? Halloween, Christmas, Valentine's, weddings, back to school...
Could you make 20+ different products in it? You'll want to upload often.
Can you clearly make a better version? Better photos, clearer instructions, more sizes, nicer design.
Total (out of 6)

Anything with 5 or 6 points is a strong niche. 3 or less, cross it out and don't look back.

WANT THE FULL SYSTEM?

This free guide covers step one. The full playbook takes you from idea to sales: building with AI, product images, Etsy SEO, Etsy Ads and social traffic. See the last page.

WHY “20+ PRODUCTS” MATTERS

One product rarely makes a shop. In my experience Etsy rewards shops that keep adding listings, so you want a niche deep enough to upload into every single day.

03

STEP THREE · 10 MINUTES

Make it yours, and make it better

You're not copying a product. You're beating it.

Pick the winning niche. Now open the 3 best-selling listings in it and read them like a detective. Your job is to find what's missing.

The improvement checklist

- ☐ Photos. Are their photos dull or unclear? Better images are the easiest win on Etsy.
- ☐ Reviews. Read the 3 and 4-star reviews. Buyers tell you exactly what they wished was different.
- ☐ Instructions. Could the steps be clearer, with more pictures?
- ☐ Options. More sizes, colors, formats or variations in one download.
- ☐ Price. Can you offer more for a dollar or two less, while staying at $10 or above?

THE LINE YOU NEVER CROSS

Ideas aren't owned, but designs are. Never copy someone's actual design, photos, pattern pieces or text. Same type of product, your own version, built from scratch. That's how you build a shop that lasts.

Your one-line product idea

Fill this in. If you can, you're ready to build.

I'll make a _____
for _____ (buyer)
that's better because _____
